RE: Deceased Florida Voters Still Voting In Florida

Greetings Governor DeSantis and Attorney General Moody,

As the 2024 presidential election approaches, the eyes of the nation turn to battleground states, including Florida, for disputes regarding election fraud. The mainstream media might relegate these disputes to the ramblings of conspiracy theorists, but there are major fires beneath the smoke.

My client – Fight Voter Fraud, Inc. – has just concluded an investigation of 1,436 random deceased Florida voters. That investigation revealed that 21.86% of those deceased voters continued to have votes cast in their names after they died. Some have had votes cast in their names for 20 years after they died.

We have sent the materials supporting our investigation and our conclusions to the Supervisors of Elections for each county that we investigated, and we strongly urged your offices to follow up with them to ensure that these dead voters are removed from the voter rolls. We are more than happy to provide you with an identical copy of those materials if you wish.

This random sampling is the tip of an iceberg. Fight Voter Fraud has obtained and is auditing the entire Florida state voter rolls. So far, the percentage revealed in the random sampling of deceased voters has remained consistent through larger samples. In other words, Florida has a very real problem with nefarious actors casting votes in the name of dead people.

In the coming weeks and months, we will conduct a thorough audit of Florida's voter rolls and are confident that we will find thousands of similar incidents of deceased voters having votes cast in their names after their deaths.

Fight Voter Fraud's investigations and conclusions are based entirely on official government records, and each step of its research can be independently replicated through Florida's own official voter rolls and other government documents.

We strongly urge your respective offices to open an investigation into these incidents of clear election fraud and do everything within your power to ensure that Florida elections are conducted fairly and honestly. We will freely supply you with our research and the results of our investigations, and we will gladly assist you in any way possible.
